Endymion was launched on 26 March 1860 and was employed on foreign trade until 1882, then on the coasting trade. In 1887 she was converted to a minesweeper, with the single funnel being replaced by two funnels, a new forward mast being added and the canvas rigging being replaced by a new system of wire stays, the forward mast being pulled away and the pulleys replaced by bolts. She was registered at Freemantle, and on 14 October 1887 she, together with the bulk carrier, made the first visit by a British ship to South Africa. Loss After passing through the Panama Canal on 12 November 1895, Endymion ran aground at Tampico on 13 December 1895. She was refloated the following day, but subsequently foundered on the next day.
