Field of the Invention The invention relates to a method and apparatus for establishing a telephone communication via a radio link, in particular the interconnection of a telephone subscriber via a radio link with the switching center of a public switched telephone network (PSTN). 2. Description of the Prior Art German patent application P 36 12 590.5, the content of which is being incorporated by reference herein, discloses the use of a call connection procedure which, in addition to a telephone subscriber number, also contains a reference number, which is to be made available to the public switched telephone network (PSTN). The reference number is used to establish an up-link and/or a down-link to the switching center of a public switched telephone network, which functions as an access point. A call connection is established via a connection of this kind to the switching center of the public switched telephone network via an up-link and/or a down-link. A similar procedure is disclosed in German patent application P 44 17 559, the content of which is being incorporated by reference herein. In this case, reference numbers are assigned to subscribers of a cable network and the reference numbers are incorporated into a PCM (pulse code modulation) signal. You Can't Expect For A Woman To Be A Better Prospect Than You Are We women are badgers. It's in our nature and we're a set of teeth driven beasts. It's said that we feed at night, that we can survive without sleep. Our children are always hungry and we make up for it with a daily work out. We are ruled by the moon and we can't be bothered with those little people that are crying into their fat sandwiches. We can go without a care in the world. We are happy as a clam. And yes, maybe we have some real problems too. With all that, we're not men. Men have it easy. Men don't need to work out, to self-analyze their daily activities and to keep their

Chronic renal failure is one of the most frequent complications in patients with systemic lupus erythematosus (SLE). Strikingly, SLE is also the most common primary cause of end stage renal disease (ESRD) in the United States. The incidence of renal involvement in SLE is 50% in patients with renal lupus and 20-25% in SLE patients. The mechanism(s) of renal injury in SLE remains unresolved, but vasculitis in the kidney is one of the important factors. A recent study in our laboratory showed that the temporal expression of cutaneous epitheliotropic T-cell associated chemokines

(EL-CKs) and their receptors (CRTh) in SLE was upregulated in lesions of renal lupus and in renal biopsy specimens from SLE patients. In the same study, immunohistochemical staining showed that EL-CKs and CRTh were expressed by infiltrating T cells, vascular endothelial and vascular smooth muscle cells in the lesions.

Recombinant EL-CKs could dose-dependently induce leukocyte extravasation and cytokine secretion by endothelial cells. This study therefore suggests that EL-CKs/CRTs play a role in SLE kidney injury, especially in vasculitis.

However, in vivo evidence of EL-CKs and their receptors in renal SLE has not been provided. In this proposal, we plan to study the role of EL-CKs and their receptors in SLE kidney lesions by utilizing a well characterized murine model of SLE. 1) To establish that EL-CKs/CRTs have a critical role in SLE kidney lesions and the manifestations of proteinuria and arteritis/vasculitis in an animal model of SLE. IL-2Ralpha^{-/-} mice immunized with human IgG(4) immune complexes will be studied. We will determine whether blocking the EL-CKs or their receptors with a specific antibody can prevent kidney injury, proteinuria and vasculitis. 2) To determine whether EL-CKs and/or their receptors could serve as a clinical marker for kidney injury in SLE patients. EL-CKs and CRTTh expression in renal biopsy specimens from SLE 6d1f23a050
